Excerpt: . . . the policy, rely upon even a definite and distinct verbal consent to additional insurance, and be misled thereby so that it would be a fraud upon the insured for the principal to insist that it was not estopped from making the defense that the insured, assuming to act upon a verbal agreement which he was legally bound to know would not justify his conduct, voluntarily and deliberately violated the terms of the policy. This question has been confidently answered in the negative by the New York Court of Appeals. Quinlan v. Insurance Co., 133 N. Y. 356. But however this may be, it is clear that in the present case not even a verbal consent on the part of the company's agent was shown. The case of City Fire Insurance Co. v. Carrugi, 41 Ga. 660 (followed in Swain v. Macon Fire Ins. Co., 102 Ga. 96), was also cited, but is not even remotely in point, the ruling therein being merely that where an agent knew, when he wrote a policy, of then-existing prior insurance, his knowledge was notice to the company, which would be deemed to have waived its right to forfeiture on the ground that no indorsement as to prior insurance was entered on the policy itself. This brings us to a consideration of the further contention of counsel for the plaintiff, that as the defendant company, after the insured had taken out a policy in the Imperial Insur I...
