RareBooksClub. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 278 pages. Original publisher: Washington, DC : The Office, 2001 OCLC Number: (OCoLC)49342637 Subject: Youth -- Employment -- United States. Excerpt: . . . Output initially decreased in the first year, but then increased in the remaining three years of the observation period. In the first year of the observation period, output produced by Job Corps participants was about 1, 700 per participant less than that produced by their control group counterparts, reflecting the participants forgone employment opportunities while in Job Corps (Figure 1). However, in the remaining three years of the observation period combined, output was about 2, 500 per participant higher than in the absence of Job Corps. Output produced after the observation period was estimated to be 26, 800 per participant. The dollar value of the annual impact on compensation in the last year of the observation period (1, 550) was assumed to persist for the rest of the average participants working lifetime. The rationale for this assumption was: 1. The impacts of Job Corps did not decline during the observation period. We found that impacts increased during the third year in the observation period and persisted without a decline in the fourth year (approximately the second and third year, respectively, after program participation). Long-term studies of the returns to training find that, if returns decline, the decline occurs within two or three years after a trainee leaves the program. 2. Job Corps teaches multiple skills. Participants in Job Corps engage not just in vocational training but also in academic education and training in social and workplace skills. Studies of other programs suggest that the impacts from programs that teach broader skills are more likely to persist. 3. Job...
